September 26, 2007

Aero Toy Store reinforced its position as a pioneer of new products this morning when it confirmed an order for the new Bombardier Global Express XRS with Global Vision flightdeck announced at the show on Monday.

Founder, president and chief executive Morris Shirazi joined Bombardier president of business aircraft Pierre Cote on the mock-up of the Global Vision flightdeck at the static park to confirm the deal for the advanced long-range business jet.

Bombardier had even more reason to celebrate when Shirazi added a further two Learjet 60XRs to his order form.

The Fort Lauderdale business jet specialist also announced the appointment of former Sara Lee chairman Steve McMillan as the new chairman of the Aero Toy Store board. The company also confirmed the formal opening of its latest sales center at McCarran International airport in Las Vegas.
